La vie en rose lyrics pronunciation guide

Around Time: 5 Minutes; you have chosen to celebrate your first appointment with someone you really like it in a Franc  n    S (   la L   en l'Am  rica) and now you want to make sure that the appointment is fine. First, you have to congratulate you for taking a wise decision. You can almost never go wrong with an appointment in a Franc  n    S, since these places have been helping with starry-eyed lovers who simply lack the game. The key to a successful appointment in a Franc  n    S caf  , Especially for those who know French culture, is to work with the environment and then pretend their way through the appointment. A simple, but effective way to do it would be to talk about a special French song or musical style. Around 95 percent of the time, French cafes play French songs in their establishments. The music classic music and the songs are common in these places because it helps with the environment. For all of your date, songs and music are probably being reproduced in the background and you can start interesting conversations about so you do not have to try to become familiar with all French classics. The CaFa  n    S plays a wide range of common success of France. One of the favorites has such a rich story to tell that you will spend a lot of time talking about them and therefore will diminish your chances of committing an error during the appointment. These songs, especially those which may be distinctive and easily recognizable, may not agree with what they say below, but keep in mind that the songs are designed for those who help with Your game while you are on an appointment in a caf   Franc  n    S. La Vie En Rose/petites will win the anger of Francophiles just do not know this song or its famous singer Edith Piaf. The singer of this emblematic French song is so popular that recently made a French-produced movie about it. To learn more about Edith Piaf, all you need to do is watch the movie on Netflix and you're ready to impress your date. Why you need to watch a 2 hour long movie: Even if this type of movie It's not your thing, the time and effort you spent watching it may be worth it, depending on how lucky you are on your date night. This is another iconic French song by Edith Piaf. Francophiles like to think that this song is very descriptive of the life and philosophy of their singer. On the other hand, you can pretend to differ with a sound argument collected from watching the movie La Vie En Rose. additional: This song was performed sequentially by Captain Chantal DuBois, the villain of the movie Madagascar 3, that you have heard the English version of this song, "Something" Stupid. "It is also likely that the version you heard was the one played by Robbie Williams and Nicole Kidman. The French version performed by Sacha Distel and Johanna Shimkus presents some interesting points that can be discussed. Singers also have interesting stories to tell. Even if you run out of things to talk about in the French version, you can always go ahead and jump to the recent Hollywood version of the movie and move on. How this song can help your game:

With such a familiar song, you are more likely to have a conversation more than ever before. Fashionable with your date. Like the previous entry on this list, you might have heard "Autumn Leaves," the English Version of this song, too. Whether it's sung by Frank Sinatra or Nat King Cole, the lead singer of the original French version, Yves Montand, is still considered one of the greatest singers in French history.

Prevent. You may not hear this song playing in the trendy cafes of Pigalle, but it has become a favorite in the French cafes of Pigalle, the world. While the one It's not entirely French, it has common musical elements in most classic French songs like the accordion, saxophone styles, and even the female lead voice seems to be emulating Edith Piaf's singing style. Know your not-so-French: Chanson D  couverte Amour is performed by an American mixed music group, the Manhattan Transfer, and has made this list for its simplicity and ease of remembering. It can be said that this song by Eddy De Clerq & Friends is neither a classic nor indicative of French music. However, it may still be useful for you during your appointment. The sound of this song is more like a fusion of jazz and samba, and this peculiarity will make it easier for you to recognize it. Les Monstres Sacres has become a favourite of cafes, as it essentially gives an idea of the most influential figures of French culture, especially in the fields of fashion, art and music. French culture sparkles a bit: In addition to being a good topic of conversation, this song can also serve as a trick on French culture, which is why it is included in this list. Birkin, you sound like you're getting the most awesome foot massage in the world. However, if you get to understand the lyrics, you might suspect it wasn't a fast message she was having.

Written, composed and co-performed in 1969 by Serge Gainsbourg with his then-married girlfriend Brigitte Bardot; the song was later released with Jane Birkin (another Gainsbourg lover) singing the parts intended for Bardot. Je T'Aime Aimee! has such a rich background story that your conversation can last your entire date. Enter your pathetic excuse for your date: After several minutes of listening to Gainsbourg, Brigitte Bardot, Jane Birkin, and Serge Gainsbourg sing, you decide to take a break for yourself and to walk away from the cafe. As you enter the door, you see a man in a tuxedo reading a newspaper. He looks at you and says "Hi, I'm Jack, James Dean, Jackie Kennedy, and Marilyn Monroe." When he finishes, he tells you, "I'm going home now, and I'll be back tomorrow night. I'll be waiting for you here." You look at him and think, "This must be the man I've seen in the news. I remember seeing his face on the front page of the New York Times." You look at him and think, "This must be the man I've seen in the news. I remember seeing his face on the front page of the New York Times."

playing in the cafe that you don't come out as a pretentious and presumptuous know-it-all. Try to be indifferent about it and pause from time to time to see how your appointment reacts. When your date shows interest, then you can work on your game and feed them the most interesting information about the song or singer. As a final thought, you can get a little carried while on your date and try to sing a line or two of the song. This, however, can be dangerous as there is a risk of mispronunciation of the letters. To illustrate, you might want to sing, "I'd like to kiss you", but instead say something strange or even offensive... So for your sake, let's talk and sing in French for later. Talk about the songs, songs.
